

CORRESPONDENCE FROM THE PLAINS.

EDITOR DESERET NEWS:—

I wonder if the sun shines as brightly on you there, as it does on me here; whether the birds still sing as sweetly as they used to; whether the soft summer breezes still gently fan your cheeks, the soothing music of the rippling brooks still salute your ears, while the fragrance and fruit of the more stately trees charm and delight your senses.

I am anxious to know, for judging from the reports occasionally brought by some gold hunting, fortune seeking individual, one might suppose that your sun had set in everlasting night—that an impenetrable gloom hung over you—that dangers and horrors surrounded you—that the volcano of human passions had upheaved and overthrown the foundations of society—that humanity, religion, right, were trampled under foot—that wrong, oppression, and the basest passions raged rampant throughout your domain—that all confidence between man and man was destroyed—that darkness, confusion and distress enveloped you, while a worse fate than that which befell Herculaneum and Pompeii awaited you.

I may not have been as observing as some folks, but positively I have seen no indications of such a terrible convulsion of nature.—Everything seems to move along “the even tenor of its way”—the sun’s in the same place, unless my eyes deceive me;

“The moon and stars too, sweetly shine And speak their origin divine.”

I believe everything’s in its right place, or else my head’s in a wrong condition; which is it dear News? It is true I occasionally meet some individual who tells me in all seriousness, that, like Lot running away from Sodom, he is making his escape from this doomed Territory in order to save himself from all these impending evils which are to overtake your ill fated readers.

These poor pious souls, say there is too much wickedness for them to live near you. I wonder if you’re really worse than Sodom.—As good a man as old Lot managed to live there—and got along very well too, till the day of its destruction. May be they, too, have had an angelic warning to “flee from the wrath to come”—but it is to be hoped that their terror, and anxiety to escape will not be so great as to cause them (thoughtlessly, of course) to deprive other people of their legitimate means of escape also.

What a miserable excuse. Just imagine, if you can, what a delightful state of things would have existed, if, when that war took place in heaven which we read about; when a portion of its inhabitants rebelled against the Almighty, and chose Satan for their leader—if then those who wished to do right and stand by the government of their Father, had said, “there is too much wickedness here for us, we will leave.” That was just what His Satanic Majesty wanted them to do. But they had better sense and stood and fought it out, like men, or angels—whichever you please—and finally kicked out those rebellious rascals and had heaven all to themselves.

Now, Mr. Devil would like to play the same game here—but he can’t come it. Neither can he persuade any to leave, only those, who, should we have to fight him and his force, would stand and look on, till they found out which would whip—and then, they’d join the strongest side, whichever that might be.

How little confidence such individuals must have in truth, in nature or in God, to think that wrong will triumph over right. Away with such a dark faithless spirit! It’s all right—all bright to me. Right may suffer for awhile, but, thank God, it must, it will triumph—for Right is Truth, and Truth is Almighty. Away then with our fears. Let us “trust and conquer.”

FORT LARAMIE, Aug. 6, '59.

PRESIDENT B. YOUNG:—

Enclosed you will receive the report sheet of the European Independent Company, which I have forwarded from the first convenient point.

We are traveling at a slow rate, owing to the largeness of the company and the lameness of our cattle, which arises from the fogs or foot evil. This will necessarily cause our provisions to run short, but I hope we will be able to arrive near by before we need supplies. I will travel as fast as possible to obviate this difficulty, but should we need assistance, I will inform you by letter or express.

Our accidents have been but slight and few, with but one exception, which was a stampede of ten teams, resulting in the death of one man instantaneously and breaking the leg of one and wounding five others; but I am happy in stating that the injured are recovering. We have no other sickness in camp.

Praying the Lord to bless you I remain yours, R. F. NESLEN.

EDITOR OF THE NEWS:

It is a time of general peace and prosperity with us. Crops look, thus far, better than for years previous, excepting at Fort Johnson, where the grasshoppers have almost entirely destroyed them. We were informed by certain U.S. officials, in the spring, who appeared among us on a pleasure excursion, that we might sow but should not reap—a declaration so incomprehensible, that by many it was regarded as a joke, which it evidently was. But even if it was intended as a prophecy, those by whom it was uttered should not be discouraged, as the Bible records examples where even the best of Prophets sometimes were mistaken, as Jonah, for instance, when he sat beneath the gourd vine during the excessive heat of the day, waiting for the destruction of Nineveh. Speaking of hot weather reminds me that the present season has been unusually warm, especially during the month of June. But if we considered the heat oppressive in this elevated region, a trip to Washington and other settlements in Washington county, a few days since, served to convince us that there could be hotter weather still. Our feelings might be compared with those of a polar bear in a menagerie. Occasionally a hot blast from the surrounding desert, like the glare of a furnace, would seem as though it would dry up the very blood in one's veins. Notwithstanding the heat, however, crops look fine. We saw corn 13 feet high, sugar cane growing in great perfection, cotton in bloom, melons ripe, and lucerne, indigo, tobacco and other products of the soil doing well. It was indeed a desert blooming like the rose.

The election held on the 1st inst. in Iron and Washington counties, resulted in the choice of the following persons:—Geo. A. Smith, member of the Legislative Council; William Crosby and Silas S. Smith, Representatives; James Whittaker, sen'r, and David Cluff, jr., Select Men of Iron county.

Can you inform us, Mr. Editor, why it is that there is a semi-weekly mail from G. S. L. City to Fillmore; thence to Cedar, a distance of 115 miles, no mail at all, thus leaving a large gap in the line. We would also like to know if it could be construed as an act of treason to the U. S. government, if we should carry the mail once a week from Fillmore to Cedar, gratis, for our own convenience. We do not wish to be shut out altogether from the rest of the world—debarred forever from receiving the influence of that civilization so much needed among us, or of knowing if the rest of the world is all right yet. If G. S. L. City should again be entirely submerged by an earthquake, and only a few inhabitants be left floating on planks, as occurred a few years since, as we learned by the Eastern newspapers, we should not hear of the occurrence very soon.

On the 6th inst., as company B, 3d artillery, under command of Capt. Hoffmans, was practicing at long range, a piece, permanently exploded, nearly proving fatal to John Titt, who was that instant withdrawing the rammer.—He was badly burned but escaped serious injury. This should prove an incentive to greater caution in such matters. Not to be too tedious, I close this wandering epistle, and subscribe myself the friend of Constitutional rights. SENEX.

A Friend

Loves your society, forsakes others for yours; fervently wishes your prosperity, and peace; venerates those who befriend you, and is not jealous of them. A friend consoles you in adversity; sustains you in poverty; sympathizes with you in afflictions; warns you of dangers; endeavors to read the true feelings of your associations; steadily watches your enemies; hates those that hate you; tries to preserve you from imposition; anticipates your desires, without waiting for requests; mourns your absence; rejoices at your return; braves the scorn of sycophants to be near you; and even when his friendship is not all appreciated, still serves and still labors for your welfare. He admires your virtuous character; to your faults he is a little blind.

Many, many flatter, many advise and many exhibit these evidences in part, but he that will do all is the gem that is more precious than the diamond and, when known, will shine among your treasures as invaluable. He will surely obtain his reward.—[Com.

AMERICAN VOLUNTEER COMPANIES. — The London Saturday Review, in an article headed "Cobden in Washington," has the following:

The United States have, properly speaking no standing army at all. A force of about 20,000 men, employed in small parties over a vast and desert territory, includes some highly educated American officers, but the rank and file are nearly all Irishmen and Germans. Yet the Americans are so far from pacific that their very platitudes are bloody-minded. Mr. Cobden may possibly have convinced himself that it is not paying for soldiers, but playing at soldiers, which makes a nation warlike. It is the habit of serving in the militia which keeps American heroism at boiling point. A community which maintains by its half pay a million of men, may be perfectly non-aggressive and pacific; but a people like the Americans, who perpetually parade their streets in fancy uniforms, and are called General, Colonel, or Major, will ever be thirsting for blood. The restless spirits who are always longing to meet the men of Inkermann and the Alma in a fair fight, are by no means the officers and privates of the American regular army; they are the clerks and shopmen who baptise themselves "Washington Fencibles" and "Jefferson Guards." These truths will soon make themselves felt in England. The English ten-pound householder has for the present set his affections on neutrality, but when he has once taught himself rifleman's drill—when he has once learned to throw himself on the reverse portion of his person and fire suddenly through his legs—we are persuaded that nothing less will satisfy him than a campaign on the Ticino.

A GREAT FEAT.—Mons. Blondin lately walked across the Niagara River, just above the Falls, on a tight rope, in the presence of 10,000 persons. He first crossed from the American side, stopping midway to refresh himself with water, raised with a rope from the deck of the steamer Maid of the Mist. The time occupied in the first crossing was seventeen minutes and a half. The return to the American side was accomplished in twelve minutes. As a mere foolhardy exploit, this has seldom been equalled, and as an exhibition of nerve it stands without a parallel. The single rope is three and a quarter inches in diameter, 1300 feet long, and with the 2700 feet of guy-ropes necessary to steady it, cost $290, and looked like a mere thread spanning the chasm, which is eleven hundred feet wide and one hundred and fifty feet deep.

Through the bottom of the abyss the Niagara River, at that place of an unknown and unmeasurable depth, rushes along with furious swiftness to the whirlpool below; the slightest misstep of the foolhardy adventurer would have hurled him from his precarious footing, and he would have disappeared from mortal eyes until his mangled body should be picked up far below, probably in Lake Ontario.—[Exchange.
