RED LEDGES PARTNERS WITH ART-KIDS IN SUPPORT OF AT-RISK YOUTH IN WASATCH SCHOOL DISTRICT

Red Ledges hosts experiential art and sports program for expressive learning

HEBER VALLEY, Utah (Oct. xx, 2013) — Red Ledges (www.redledges.com), a premier four-season, mountain recreation community in Heber Valley has partnered with Wasatch County School District to sponsor an eight-week experimental art and sports program at Old Mill Elementary School.

The program, Art-Kids, a youth development program within Summit and Wasatch counties, is centered on expressive arts and group dynamics to serve children between the ages of eight and 17, who are trying to deal with economic, social or emotional pressures, although the program benefits any student who wishes to participate. . The program brings together trained facilitators and professional artists to feature and incorporate all types of art from visual art, movement, drama and music. Red Ledges is sponsoring the full eight-week course for Old Mill Elementary School.

“The Art-Kids program is such an important initiative for the children in our community, said Mitchel Burns, chief operating officer of Red Ledges. “We are grateful to be a part of Wasatch County School District’s efforts to address diversity, self-esteem and self-expression issues for our children, by providing enhanced learning opportunities and experiences.”

To further support the Old Mill Elementary School Art-Kids group, Red Ledges recently hosted a youth group on-site for a golf and tennis activity. The youth were involved in an interactive activity with premier instruction through Red Ledges’ world-renowned Jim McLean Golf and Cliff Drysdale Tennis schools.
